

Edinburgh Fringe 2016: Comedy

Erich McElroy's (US) Electile Dysfunction

Laughing Horse Bar 50, The Alcove
4 - 28 August @ 1.20pm

'Well worth it, even if you're not in the least bit political.'
Edinburgh Evening News

It's not hard to be US President, but it is hard to understand the most dysfunctional presidential election race ever. Comedian and experienced press and broadcast pundit Erich McElroy has got the stars, the stripes and the spunk to explain the biggest poll on the planet.

This year's Presidential race has been marked by verbal abuse and calls for physical violence - and that's just from Donald Trump's former butler. With all this heated rhetoric Erich is calling for people to stop listening to the person who is the loudest, but listen to a bit of reason, but he's pretty sure know one can hear him.

Rather than scream at you his political ideas, Erich wants to scream at people not to scream their political ideas. He promises to do this without any actual screaming. It will be quite a scream.

'A show worth seeing'
The Mirror

Originally from Seattle, Erich McElroy has lived in the UK since 2000. Though he left behind baseball and apple pie, Erich has never given up an obsession with American politics, after all what's funnier – a by-election in Dullsville-upon-Boredom or a debate where everyone involved has a gun?

Erich has been in demand as a pundit and has written for The Independent, The Herald, The Huffington Post and even Saga. Erich's broadcasting credits include BBC News, BBC Breakfast, STV, Newsnight, Talk Radio and SomeNews Live on Fubar Radio.

Over the last few months Erich presented his Imperfect Guide to the US Presidential Debates in London which served as a vital and funny introduction to the personalities and issues that have shaped the ever more exciting race to be the next leader of the free world. The show included a range of guests including former MP Lembit Opik and acclaimed comedian Josie Long.
