

Joe Bor presents...

Jasper Cromwell Jones: This Is Not A Holiday

“The high gag rate puts many other character comics to shame.” Guardian

This Is Not A Holiday marks the eagerly awaited return of last year’s hit character – hapless, upper crust adventurer Jasper Cromwell Jones. Fresh from another successful Edinburgh run, the show has now arrived in London as part of the Museum of Comedy’s ‘12 Days of Edinburgh’ season.

“Riotously funny” * Fringebiscuit

Last year we experienced the highs and lows of Joe Bor’s buffoonish creation as he recounted his epic mountaineering quest to an audience who were suspended in disbelief...that such a doofus could ever be allowed to do something that dangerous.

The consequences were, inevitably, disastrous. But that won’t stop the well-bred bravura of this chap taking hold of him again. When Jasper learns that daddy is in the Outback, off he pops to Australia. However, his mission becomes more about survival than retrieval, and he’s not helped by his laddish cousin Jimmy (Kieran Chambers) and his obsessive fan Gemma (Samantha Baines). Luckily Bear Grylls proves to be much more helpful.

“Joe Bor’s show is a model of Wodehousian characterisation and storytelling. He presents an exceptionally polished and professional performance”

* The Skinny

Joe Bor is a warm up for The Graham Norton Show and Mock the Week. His comedy career has seen him crowned with numerous accolades including the winner of Jewish Comedian of the Year, but also Best Value Show at Leicester Comedy Festival, and he was a finalist for Comedian of the Year. Playing the prestige comedy clubs and festivals as a stand-up, Joe has also performed as part of two sketch groups and, in 2011, he wrote and directed his first play, Who Killed the Counsellor? Joe was named in The Daily Telegraph’s top people to follow on Twitter and in The Scotsman’s 21 Funniest Fringe Jokes. Meanwhile, after last year’s acclaimed show, Jasper Cromwell Jones was optioned by TV company Yalli (Shed Media).

This year’s show is directed by comedian Matt Green (mattjgreen.webs.com) and also received a number of rave reviews.

Best Fringe Joke 2014: The Independent, The Mirror, Daily Mail

“For people who like their comedy funny.” Matt Lucas

“Joe Bor is a must see.” Alan Carr

“Natural comic ability.” Steve Bennett, Chortle
