

US 2024 ELECTION - PUNDIT AVAILABILITY
COMEDIAN & COMMENTATOR ERICH McELROY

With credits including BBC Breakfast, GMB, Sky News, Newsnight and BBC Radio 4's Moral Maze, UK-based American commentator, comedian and host of the podcast 'American Exchange', Erich McElroy is available for comment on the 2024 US presidential election.

Erich blends his deep understanding of the American political system with his comedic communication skills to offer a unique "translation" of his homeland to a global audience.

US Election Debates 2024: Felon vs Prosecutor and the case for America

Tuesday's presidential debate might be the only time we see Vice President Kamala Harris and former President Donald Trump together, unless Harris loses the election and goes back to being a prosecutor. While the mics will be off when the other is speaking, that won't stop the sparks from flying.

This singular debate could be the moment that VP Harris puts Trump away once and for all - or it could be the chance for Trump to actually fire someone.

It's not just about the presidency, the result of this election will impact the bodily autonomy of women, America's support for NATO and the war in Ukraine. "Come November," says Erich, "we will have a new leader of the free the world - sorry Keir, it's not you."

Once blocked by Trump on Twitter before he was legally unblocked, UK-based American comedian and podcaster, Erich McElroy says:

“Donald Trump, an actual felon, is running to Make America Great Again, Again, Again. While it might seem inconceivable to most of the UK, many Americans in the crucial swing states are willing to ignore his two impeachments, his liability for sexual abuse and his felony convictions - their love of low taxes and their hatred of immigrants and women matters more.

“For Kamala Harris to win, she has to walk the contradictory path of being the voice of change whilst being the legacy candidate for a deeply unpopular administration. But, maybe being the non-geriatric candidate is enough to carry her over the finish line, especially since Trump can't use his golf cart to get there.

“America views itself as the world's greatest democracy, but even though the popular vote will almost certainly go to VP Harris, the Electoral College will have the final say about who becomes the next President of the United States.”

More about Erich McElroy:

Originally from Seattle, Erich has lived in the UK since 2000. He's watched from afar, with horror and amusement, as his country disintegrates. The only thing that makes him feel better is watching Britain disintegrate from close-up.

Erich's broadcasting credits include BBC Radio Scotland's Breaking the News, BBC Radio 4's Moral Maze, BBC News, BBC Breakfast, Good Morning Britain, Newsnight, BBC Radio 5 live, TalkRadio, Sky Sunrise, Murnaghan, News Thing on RT, STVLive and SomeNews Live on Fubar Radio and was co-host on Love Sport's Late Shift with Steve N Allen & Erich McElroy.

On Erich's podcast 'American Exchange' he dials back across the pod to talk to some of the biggest political voices today. His past guests include Mary Trump (author and niece of Donald), Anthony Scaramucci (former Trump administration communications director), Olivia Troye (former Trump administration official and head of Republicans for Harris), Rick Wilson (founder of the Lincoln Project), SE Cupp (CNN commentator) and many more.

Erich has been in demand as a pundit and has written for The Independent, The Herald, The Huffington Post and Saga. Erich's solo shows, The Imperfect Guide to Picking the Perfect President and US (Electile) Dysfunction, and his multi-bill series, The Imperfect Guide to the US Presidential Elections (guests have included Lembit Opik, Grainne Maguire and Josie Long), have helped lift the lid on the crazy world of US politics to UK audiences, and that includes to political wonks and civilians alike.

Erich has also spoken on behalf of Democrats Abroad, the official wing of the Democratic Party outside of the United States and supports Vote from Abroad, the non-profit effort to engage Americans around the world - all of whom can vote in US elections.
